Apple Training

Mac OS X and Pro Apps training courses are delivered by Apple Authorized Training Centers (AATCs) worldwide - customers can visit <http://training.apple.com> for AATC locations, schedules, and information on registering for the class directly with the AATC. If a number of individuals need training, AATCs can conduct onsite training at the customer location. Apple Training continues to conduct Pro Apps Train-the-Trainer (T3) classes.

Certification exams for Mac OS X and Pro Apps are offered at AATCs for the classes they teach. And Prometric Testing Centers offer Mac OS X exams and Final Cut Pro Level One.

For information on Apple Training & Certification, visit <http://training.apple.com>.

Pro Applications

Pro Applications Train The Trainer Classes

To attend a Pro Applications Train the Trainer (T3) course, you must first be accepted into the Apple Certified Trainer (ACT) for Pro Apps Program. Apply for admission to the ACT for Pro Apps Program by completing the online application. This program trains and certifies qualified individuals to deliver curricula focused on Apple's suite of digital Pro applications. ACTs work with Apple Authorized Training Centers to deliver a range of courses to end users. Certification is a great way to measure your knowledge and confirm your expertise, and it provides an additional tool for marketing your skills.
